

The Bookstore

Riddles! Each clue is an easy riddle!

SUGAR

How to Bake: I sweeten everything in a natural way.

TEA

Beverages Through the Centuries: I'm ancient, from Asia.

OSTRICH

Ornithology for Beginners: I'm flightless, but at least I run fast.

RAGE

The Emotion Dictionary: I have four letters and describe extreme anger, but people can also fly into me.

YOU

The Secret Romantics: It's me and ____, forever.

RABBIT

Life in the Prairie: I hop, hop, hop, I have long ears, and I have six letters.

EAGLE

Scary Birds: Sometimes I'm bald, but sometimes I'm just a massive and scary bird of prey.

DANDELIONS

Flowers and Fields: I am a fragile yellow thing, but when I'm in my white form, I can be easily blown away.

NAPKIN

Etiquette: I sit quietly folded until mealtime, and then I clean up your individual messes.

ORANGE

Fruits: I'm a lovely little fruit, and I have the same name as the color of a traffic cone.

SLEEP

Biology for the Concerned: I am an action that you do every night, and I help you recharge for the next day.

ELEPHANT

Welcome to Africa: I have really large ears, and also a trunk.

BOOKS

Literature for the Curious: I am a collection of pages, the very thing sold at the store you are currently visiting.

RING

Jewelry in the Modern World: I am worn on a finger, and I am often made of metal and diamonds.

OATMEAL

Breakfast Foods: I am healthy for the eater, and am made of oats. Some people may take me with milk or fruits.

WALL

Architectural Basics: I am the very tall thing that divides two rooms, but I do not swing open. I can also enclose a space, and I am sometimes made of plaster.

NIGHTGOWN

How to Dress for All Situations: I'm a dress, but you wear me when it's time to sleep.

QUINOA

The Healthy Cookbook: I'm like rice but rounder and healthier for you, and I'm secretly a bunch of little seeds.

UMBRELLA

The Weatherman: I shield you from the rain, but you don't wear me -- you hold me.

IGLOO

Life in the Cold: Think of me like a little round hut that could melt if you place me in the wrong weather.

HOOD

How to Survive Canadian Winter: You put me up over your hair when it's cold, but I'm also at the very front of your car.

Then, you plug the first letters of each section in to the blanks at the bottom, and get one final riddle, whose answer is "RUDOLPH"